Sleepover

We played lots of games. We played Connect Four and Yahtzee. Then we played Barbies. Morgan showed me her new phone. Her little brother kept trying to hang out with us.

Sleepover

We played lots of games. At first, it was just Morgan and I playing. We played Yahtzee and then Connect Four. We played while her parents did the dinner dishes. Then we all played Monopoly together— even her little brother. It was a long, long, loooooong game. It took more than two hours! I had only played Monopoly one other time, and we never actually finished the game. This time we did. Morgan's little brother Miles won.

Sleepover

My friend Morgan invited me over for a sleepover. We have been friends ever since we were five years old. We met in Mrs. Warpup's class. I hang out with Morgan at school all the time, but I don't go to her house that much.

First she had to do some chores after school. She pulled out all the papers from the Take-Home folder in her backpack. Morgan has to walk the dog after school. So we put on Pepper's blue leash and walked him around the house and near the field. The walk took a long time; their yard is huge. When we were finally done, my shoes were all wet and squishy.
