

He wears a uniform. He walks around hallways and into rooms. He checks doorknobs to see if some rooms are locked. He listens carefully to sounds. He carries a flashlight and 2-way radio.

What is his occupation?

He slammed his phone down on the counter. He walks around the room tapping his finger to his forehead and moaning. Picking up his phone, he taps in several combinations of numbers. The screen lights up with a padlock icon. Again, he slams his phone to the counter.

What happened?

What I know:

His education included a bachelor's degree and a doctoral degree. He studies bones and muscles. He develops training plans for how to mend and strengthen his patients' muscles.

What is his occupation?

She enters a small space and settles into a hydraulic chair. She is converted to a reclining position. Someone comes and puts a small bib around her neck. There's an overhead light shining in her eyes. After enduring much poking and prodding, she leaves.
